Products are produced to last years without losing their must-have performance standards and properties.

THE CHALLENGE

Like every company, challenges continue to increase with time. Likewise, every business wants to guarantee the best for their clients. The challenge for Neon Textiles was that they were continually receiving and shipping products from their warehouse. They did not have accurate information about current inventory. In addition, the system they were using was becoming obsolete and left too much room for error.

IMPLEMENTATION

They were able to view all SKUs of their inventory. They managed to add and remove items from their available stock. Company employees welcomed the new Inventory System as it significantly improved their internal processes and workflow.
